Filipino Hostage Released

Militants in Iraq free truck driver, issue threat to Japan

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Militants freed a Filipino truck driver Tuesday after the Philippines government gave in to their demands to withdraw troops from Iraq to prevent the beheading of the 46-year-old father of eight who had been held captive for two weeks.

Apparently emboldened by their success, insurgents promptly took aim at Japan, threatening in a Web site message to send "lines of cars laden with explosives" to kill its troops in Iraq if they did not leave.

More than 60 foreigners have been taken hostage in recent months, and there were fears that the action by the Philippines government would lead to more kidnappings and prompt members of the U.S.-led coalition to think twice about sending, or keeping, their soldiers in Iraq.

In Baghdad, Filipino hostage Angelo dela Cruz was dropped off in front of the United Arab Emirates Embassy on Tuesday, a day after his government withdrew the last of the 51 troops they had stationed here.

Dela Cruz

Dela Cruz said his captors treated him well, and he thanked President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo for pulling out the troops. "I know that the Filipinos are all very happy about the decision of the president," he said. RAVI NESSMAN (AP)

Berger Off Kerry Team Amid Probe

WASHINGTON | Former national security adviser Sandy Berger, the subject of a criminal investigation over the disappearance of terrorism documents, stepped aside on Tuesday as an informal adviser to Democratic presidential candidate John Kerry.

Word of the Berger investigation comes a week before Kerry's convention and two days before the commission releases its report into the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, which could prove politically damaging for President Bush.

Kerry hopes to use the convention to persuade voters that he is ready to be commander in chief. The cornerstone of Kerry's argument against Bush is that he used faulty intelligence and poor judgment in waging war against Iraq.

Berger, former President Bill Clinton's national security adviser, is under criminal investigation by the Justice Department after highly classified terrorism documents disappeared while he was reviewing what should be turned over to the Sept. 11 commission.

FOOD | Mac Moment Chalk up another meaty milestone for Don Gorske. The Fond du Lac, Wis., man downed his 20,000th Big Mac sandwich Monday while surrounded by spectators at a local McDonald's. He already had made the Guinness World

Records book for eating a record number of Big Macs even before he hit number 19,000 in March 2003. The 6-foot Gorske has eaten at least one burger a day since 1972, but has maintained his weight at about 170 pounds. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

SEND IN THE CLOWNS Believe It or Not, This Ends Well

Although Cappy the Clown looks a tad menacing and little John Arthur seems legitimately frightened, both were actually enjoying a lighthearted morning of fun and frolic at the Children's Day celebration Monday at the Henry C. Chambers Waterfront Park in Beaufort, S.C. The four-hour event featured games, shows and a dozen inflatable moonwalk trampolines, the Beaufort Gazette reported. The festivities also boasted a "rain room" with water spraying from the ceiling — a definite kid-pleaser — and an evening Motown concert for tag-along adults. (EXPRESS)

IN THE AIR Drink Service

Drunken passengers often give air crews trouble, but Russia's leading airline on Tuesday reported an "unprecedented" reversal: A passenger was assaulted by intoxicated flight attendants. Two crew members on a domestic Aeroflot flight beat up a passenger who had complained that the flight attendants were drunk, airline spokeswoman Irina Dannenberg said. The passenger, identified only as A. Chernopup, left the plane with a black eye and was promptly sent to a doctor. The Izvestia newspaper also reported that a criminal case was opened after Chernopup reported the incident to the police. The entire crew of the flight has been temporarily dismissed and a joint commission is investigating the incident. (AP)

JOLLINESS Like a Bowl Full of Jelly

If they don't always look their Christmas best, it may be because delegates to the World Santa Congress in Copenhagen, Denmark, have a lot on their plates. The annual meeting of more than 100 Santas from around the world addresses serious issues, including the size of the year's Christmas-present haul, the feeding and upkeep of flying reindeer, and the date of Christmas — which, luckily, remains a stable Dec. 25. But even Santa needs a bit of relaxation, so this year's delegates hit the beach at Klampenborg for a bit. (EXPRESS)

Report Won't Call 9/11 Preventable

Commission's findings to be released Thursday

WASHINGTON | The Sept. 11 commission's final report won't declare that the worst terrorist attack in U.S. history was preventable, though some panelists said during the 20-month investigation they believed the hijackers could have been stopped.

In the end, the panel's five Democrats and five Republicans did not want to draw a conclusion on that major point, believing it could open the way to partisan sniping in a presidential election year.

The 500-plus-page report will be released Thursday. Republican chairman Thomas Kean, a former New Jersey governor, and Democratic vice chairman Lee Hamilton, a former congressman from Indiana, began briefing congressional leaders Tuesday and will meet with President George W. Bush on Wednesday.

Besides calling for a new Cabinet-level intelligence chief, the report will recommend combining the House and Senate intelligence committees and removing term limits from members, said House majority whip Roy Blunt, a Missouri Republican.

In recent interviews with The Associated Press, commissioners said the report will fault Congress for poor oversight of the nation's intelligence gathering and criticize government agencies for their emergency responses to the 2001 attacks that killed nearly 3,000 people in New York, Washington and Pennsylvania.

The harshest criticism will be leveled at the FBI and CIA, with the panel citing poor information sharing and intelligence analysis as key factors.

Commissioners won't point to individuals in the Bush administration or former President Bill Clinton's administration, instead laying out what they consider a factual accounting of events. HOPE YEN (AP)

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

→ Several relatives of Sept. 11 victims said Tuesday they looked forward to reading the report and hoped that discussion of the nation's "colossal systemic failures" will transcend election-year politics. The commission plans a briefing with relatives before the report is released.

Warner: New Report to Back Iraq WMD Claims

WASHINGTON | An upcoming report will contain "a good deal of new information" backing up the Bush administration's contention that Saddam Hussein pursued weapons of mass destruction, Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman John Warner said Tuesday.

The administration cited Saddam's hunger for such weapons as a main reason to invade Iraq last year.

"I'm not suggesting dramatic discoveries," Warner told reporters, but "bits and pieces that Saddam Hussein was clearly defying" international restrictions, "and he and his government had a continuing interest in maintaining the potential to shift to production of various types of weapons of mass destruction in a short period of time."

The report is by the civilian head of the Iraq Survey Group, Charles Duelfer. Initially the report was expected to be done this summer, but instead it will come out in September, Warner said. APARNA H. KUMAR (AP)

Bush Makes 2-State Swing

President says his re-election will ensure the country's safety

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA | President Bush said Tuesday his re-election will ensure safety for Americans as well as for those in the rest of the world in the war against terrorism.

"After four years more in this office I want people to look back and say, 'The world is a more peaceful place,'" Bush told supporters at a community college in Iowa. "Four more years and America will be safer and the world will be more peaceful."

Bush squeezed in a two-state campaign swing through the Midwest before the political spotlight turns to next week's Bush arrives in Iowa on Tuesday with daughters Jenna, right, and Barbara.

Democratic National Convention in Boston. His twin daughters accompanied him to Iowa and Missouri.

"It makes the days a little shorter and the trips a lot more fun," Bush said of Barbara and Jenna, who were making their first campaign trip together with their father.

Iowa and Missouri are toss-up states that Bush and Democratic presidential candidate John Kerry are fighting hard to win this year. Bush narrowly lost Iowa in 2000, but he won Missouri by about 3 percentage points.

Campaign finance reports filed Tuesday by the Bush campaign showed the president had raised nearly $230 million by July and spent about $160 million through June.

Kerry announced that he raised just over $99 million in a three-month period, including $36.5 million in June, and has nearly matched President Bush in campaign spending since the primaries ended.

FDA Approves Botox to Curb Sweating

WASHINGTON | It's now official: Wrinkle-smoothing Botox can be injected in the armpits to curb excessive sweating.

On Tuesday, the Food and Drug Administration approved the long-expected new use of Botox, the latest in a range of conditions to be treated by this weakened form of the food-poisoning toxin that causes botulism.

People with a condition called "primary axillary hyperhidrosis" produce four or five times the amount of underarm sweat as is normal. There are various treatments, including powerful antiperspirants, drugs to prevent sweat gland stimulation, even surgery on those glands.

Botox apparently temporarily paralyzes a nerve that stimulates sweat glands. In one study, 91 percent of patients who received Botox underarm injections saw their sweating cut in half in a month, compared with 36 percent of patients given salt-water injections. (AP)

China Frees Outspoken Physician

Doctor who challenged government on SARS, Tiananmen released

BEIJING | A Chinese military surgeon who exposed the scope of Beijing's SARS outbreak and petitioned the government to admit it made mistakes in the 1989 assault on pro-democracy protesters has been released from detention, a U.S. official said Tuesday.

Dr. Jiang Yanyong, 72, was detained June 1. In Washington, a State Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed Jiang's release, but did not know when he was freed.

Jiang became known internationally when he broke with government secrecy last year to reveal the true scale of the outbreak of severe acute respiratory syndrome in the capital. His disclosure was followed by the dismissal of the health minister and government promises of more openness about the disease.

Jiang alarmed Chinese leaders when he wrote a letter dated Feb. 24 urging them to declare the 1989 Tiananmen Square protests a patriotic movement, asking for a reversal of the official verdict that the nonviolent demonstrations were a counterrevolutionary riot.

The government is still extremely sensitive about Tiananmen. Others who have appealed for a reversal of the official verdict have been detained and harassed. (AP)

Critic of Arafat Attacked

Latest violence underscores territories' volatility

RAMALLAH, WEST BANK | Gunmen shot and wounded a strong critic of Yasser Arafat on Tuesday, the latest example of the chaos that has divided the Palestinian leader's Cabinet and sparked violent protests against his administration.

Nabil Amr, a Palestinian lawmaker and former Cabinet minister, was shot in the leg by unidentified attackers while on his way home in the West Bank city of Ramallah, Palestinians said. Doctors said he was not seriously wounded.

Some Palestinians speculated that the shooting was a warning against criticizing Arafat, but there was no hard evidence of that.

Amr has often complained about corruption and inefficiency in Arafat's administration.

Washington has called for reform and faulted Arafat for not giving real power to two successive prime ministers. But U.S. officials kept their distance from the latest turmoil. "We will just have to watch it unfold," Secretary of State Colin Powell said Tuesday.

Prime Minister Ahmed Qureia, meanwhile, told Arafat he's determined to quit unless Arafat yields more power to the Cabinet. Arafat has refused to accept his resignation.

The crisis has been brewing since late last week, when Qureia submitted his resignation in frustration over the breakdown of authority in Gaza and discontent over the disorder within Palestinian security services. (AP)

U.N. CONDEMNS BARRIER

→ The U.N. General Assembly overwhelming-ly adopted a resolution Tuesday demanding that Israel comply with a world court decision and tear down the barrier it is building to seal off the West Bank.

The vote was 150 in favor, 6 opposed — including the United States — and 10 abstentions.

The assembly's vote, like the opinion of the International Court of Justice, is not legally binding, but both have symbolic value. The resolution demands that the barrier be dismantled and reparations be paid to Palestinians harmed by its construction. (AP)

U.N. Agency Says Arms Inspectors To Return to Iraq

CAIRO, EGYPT | U.N. nuclear safeguards inspectors will return to Iraq in the coming days following an official invitation from the new government, said Mohamed ElBaradei, the director-general of the International Atomic Energy Agency, on Tuesday.

The IAEA is responsible for dismantling Iraq's nuclear program and ensuring that Iraq adheres with the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty.

The U.N. Security Council authorized U.N. inspectors to dismantle Iraq's weapons programs after the first Gulf War in 1991.

Under its resolution, the council must state that Iraq has no banned weapons before U.N. sanctions can be lifted. But the council has put off a decision on the return of U.N. inspectors under pressure from the United States, which barred all U.N. inspectors from Iraq and instead deployed its own inspection teams to search for Iraqi weapons of mass destruction. The corporation's output is widely perceived to have declined in quality as a result of the heavy use of repeats and "dumbed down" content, the survey showed. (AP)

U.S. Investigates Sudan Genocide Claims

WASHINGTON | State Department officials are interviewing refugees from Sudan's Darfur region to determine if widespread abuses there can be legally described as genocide.

The United States has been pushing for a U.N. Security Council resolution that could impose sanctions against the Sudanese government, accused of supporting Arab militias blamed for atrocities against the black population in Darfur.

With more than 1.2 million residents displaced and tens of thousands killed, some analysts are seeking a U.S. declaration that the atrocities meet the legal definition of genocide under the Genocide Convention. State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Tuesday U.S. officials have interviewed 50 refugees in Chad and plan to interview 1,000 or more. (AP)

Taliban Leader's In-Law Captured

Mullah Omar's relative nabbed after shootout in Uruzgan province

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Afghan forces captured a brother-in-law of fugitive Taliban leader Mullah Omar on Tuesday.

Mullah Amanullah was detained by Afghan police after a shootout near Deh Rawood in Uruzgan province, 250 miles southwest of Kabul, police chief Rozi Khan told the AP. One police commander died in the confrontation.

Authorities found three remote-controlled bombs, a satellite telephone and an AK-47 assault rifle in Amanullah's car, Khan said. He said Afghan authorities might hand Amanullah over to American forces. U.S. military spokesman Maj.

Rick Peat had no information on the arrest.

It was not immediately known what role Amanullah held in the Taliban movement or whether he had any recent contact with Omar, who could have a large network of in-laws through his four wives.

Meanwhile, Gov. Khial Mohammed said one militant was killed and four were captured in neighboring Zabul province on Monday when U.S. and Afghan troops searched villages for guns and rebels.

Separately, an American soldier was shot and wounded in Arghandab, another district of Zabul, deputy police chief Ghulam Jailani said. U.S. forces later seized one suspect, he said.

The American military had no immediate comment on that incident. (AP)

First African Tapped as Senior Oil Exec

LAGOS, NIGERIA | Oil giant Royal Dutch/Shell named a Nigerian to head its largest African subsidiary Tuesday, an appointment analysts said was a bid to appease Nigerian unions threatening production shut-downs to protest the relative absence of Nigerians in top management.

Basil Omiyi will become managing director of Shell Petroleum Development Company of Nigeria. He is the first African to hold such a senior post for an oil multinational.

Omiyi's promotion comes as multinationals increasingly turn to oil-rich west Africa as an alternative supplier to the Middle East. Nigeria is Africa's largest oil exporter and the fifth-biggest source of U.S. oil imports. (AP)

FBI Searches Labs at Fort Detrick

Agents seek evidence from 2001 anthrax attacks

FREDERICK, MD. | FBI agents combed laboratory suites at Fort Detrick — home to the Army's biological warfare defense program — on Tuesday, and a source said they were again looking for evidence in the 2001 anthrax attacks.

The labs at the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases have been closed since Friday, Fort Detrick spokesman Charles Dasey said.

A law-enforcement source, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press the activity is related to the anthrax mailings that killed five people and sickened 17 in the autumn of 2001.

FBI agents have frequently visited Fort Detrick since the unsolved attacks, amid speculation that the deadly spores or the person who sent them may be connected to Fort Detrick.

Dasey said he didn't know which labs were involved, what sort of research had been conducted there or how long they would be closed.

Debra Weierman, spokeswoman for the FBI's Washington field office, said the lab probe was part of "an ongoing criminal investigation."

Much of the speculation about a Fort Detrick connection has centered on Dr. Steven J. Hatfill, a former government scientist and bioweapons expert who once worked at the infectious disease institute at Fort Detrick. Hatfill has denied any role in the attacks. DAVID DISHNEAU (AP)

Child Dies In Pileup On I-66

FAIRFAX, VA. | A child was killed and six other people injured Tuesday in what authorities described as a chain reaction crash on Interstate 66.

The four-vehicle pileup occurred in the westbound lanes, just west of the Route 123 interchange, toward the end of the morning rush hour.

Investigators said a pickup truck driver — who was looking down, rather than at the road — plowed into the rear of a Geo Metro, which burst into flames on impact.

A child riding in a safety seat inside the Geo was killed, and the driver was among the injured.

No other details about the victims were immediately available.

Virginia State Police charged Matthew Cable, 21, of Hagerstown, Md., with reckless driving. (AP)

FATAL ACCIDENT | SEARCH FOR SURVIVORS

DIGGING OUT: Rescue personnel attempt to free a worker along Route 40 west of Hagerstown, Md., on Tuesday, after a crate of drilling equipment fell on a crew fixing an underground cable. Two people died in the accident.

Man Who Faked Bus Accident Pleads Guilty

WASHINGTON | A camera on a Metrobus helped trip up a man who authorities said tried to scam the cash-strapped transit agency.

James H. Patterson, Jr., pleaded guilty to mail fraud on Tuesday. Patterson, 40, claimed the bus hit him on June 28, 2003.

Prosecutors said Patterson even went to an emergency room and was treated for what he claimed

Md. Prosecutor's Motives Attacked

Defense tries to turn attention to DiBiagio in pension fraud case

BALTIMORE | Defense lawyers accused U.S. Attorney Thomas DiBiagio on Tuesday of indicting a former state official "for improper purposes, possibly including his own political ambitions," as the impact of a Justice Department reprimand last week played out in court.

William Martin, who is representing former Board of Regents Chairman Nathan Chapman in a public corruption case, is asking a federal judge to let him explore the government's motivations for indicting Chapman before jurors.

Martin made the request a day after federal prosecutors attacked the idea of allowing such testimony as "just a tactic calculated to divert attention from evidence of the defendant's guilt."

U.S. District Judge William Quarles hasn't announced a ruling.

DiBiagio, a Republican-appointed prosecutor, was reprimanded last week by Deputy Attorney General James Comey for sending internal documents pressing his staff to produce three "front page" indictments of elected officials by Nov. 6 — four days after the general election.

The filing came as Chapman's attorneys started calling witnesses. Chapman was a money manager for the state retirement system from 1996 until January 2002. He is accused of mail fraud, wire fraud and securities fraud in the investment of retirement system funds to boost his ailing company's stock price. BRIAN WITTE (AP)

SERIAL BANK ROBBERIES: The only suspect charged in connection with a series of Washington, D.C.-area bank robberies will remain in federal custody, following a detention hearing Tuesday. Prince George's County, Md., had wanted Aaron B. Perkins back for sentencing in an unrelated case. He is accused of conspiracy to commit bank robberies. (AP)

Microsoft to Pay Its Investors $75B

Move suggests major acquisition not in works

SEATTLE | Microsoft plans to pay out most of its cash hoard directly to shareholders through dividends and stock buybacks totaling up to $75 billion over four years, the software maker said Tuesday, ending speculation about the future of its dizzyingly large bank account.

Microsoft, which has a near monopoly on the software that runs the world's desktop computers, generated $10.4 billion in cash during its 2003 fiscal year alone. But its stock price has been little changed for almost three years, increasing pressure on the company to do something with reserves that now total at least $56 billion.

With the bulk of Microsoft's legal troubles behind it, the company said it finally felt free to spend part of its stockpile.

The company plans to pay a one-time dividend of $3 a share — at a cost of $32 billion — and will double its annual dividend to 32 cents a share. Microsoft also said it plans to buy back up to $30 billion of the company's stock over the next four years.

The payout suggests Microsoft has, at least for now, put off plans to use the money to make a major acquisition to punch up growth. Microsoft disclosed last month that it had initiated merger talks with German software maker SAP, but called off the potentially costly deal after deciding it would be too complex. ALLISON LINN (AP)

Schwab Founder Back in CEO Seat

SAN FRANCISCO | Discount broker Charles Schwab Corp. dumped CEO David Pottruck on Tuesday and replaced him with founder Charles Schwab, hoping the man who created the company can rejuvenate a business that has been sputtering for several years.

The San Francisco-based company made its surprise announcement as it released its second-quarter results. Schwab reported a 10 percent drop in its profit for the three months ended June, reversing a recent streak of improved earnings.

Entering Tuesday's trading session, the company's market value had plunged by 30 percent this year, a decline that may have contributed to Pottruck's ouster. (AP)

Grasso Files $50M Lawsuit Against N.Y. Stock Exchange

Former New York Stock Exchange chief Richard A. Grasso countered the state attorney general's lawsuit against him Tuesday by naming the exchange and current NYSE chairman John Reed in a $50 million countersuit. In the suit, Grasso claims the NYSE breached its contract with him by withholding tens of millions of dollars in additional salary, and by "maliciously disparaging him through Mr. Reed's false and defamatory statements."

Grasso is also seeking the dismissal of part of a lawsuit by Attorney General Eliot Spitzer, who is seeking the return of the bulk of Grasso's $187.5 million compensation package. (AP)

Wal-Mart Makes Another Try at Selling Apparel Online

Wal-Mart Stores Inc. — which pulled out of selling apparel online three years ago — is giving it another try, offering a selection of fashions under more than 15 brands through its Web site in time for back-to-school shopping. The world's largest retailer said its site, walmart.com, offers apparel under more than 15 different brands in regular and special sizes for men, women and children. The new online feature began Tuesday. (AP)

Audi Wins Future Fans

MOVIE CARS | In some respects, "I, Robot" — a sci-fi thriller starring a futuristic Audi and, oh yes, Will Smith — is fairly programmatic.

But in the annals of cinematic product placement — and I'm afraid we have reached the point where there are such annals — the film is a landmark.

"I didn't really want us to be in a futuristic movie at first," said

Tim Miksche, product-placement specialist for Audi AG, the luxury car division of VW Group that helped design and build Detective Del Spooner's Audi RSQ sports coupe. "I didn't know if Audi should be associated with that reality," Miksche was eventually persuaded by the company's product-placement consultant.

Unlike the Lexus in "Minority Report," which was designed in Hollywood with minimal input from Lexus, the RSQ is the product of Audi's design studios.

On some points, the designers at Audi argued for and won changes in the vehicle from director Alex Proyas. He wanted the car to be a four-seater squad car — not the most glamorous image. After reading the script, the Audi designers went back to the producers to argue for a two-seater. "We were desperate," said Martin Ertl, Audi's head of design management.

"We didn't see the Will Smith character in a four-seater," added Miksche, in a turn of phrase worthy of the best Tinseltown playmaker.

And so the Audi of the future is not some high-tech Crown Victoria, but a sleek, muscular wonder, vividly featured in Audi's new $25-million, cross-promotional campaign.

More important still, perhaps, is the idea that there will even be an Audi in the future. The appearance of familiar brands in futuristic movies conveys a special meaning. It subtly suggests that the brand is somehow transcendent, permanent, eternal. DAN NEIL (L.A. TIMES)

I BELIEVE IT CAN FLY: The Audi RSQ amazes fans at the premiere of "I, Robot" in Los Angeles. The car was designed by Audi expressly for the sci-fi film.

I Drive Pretty, Oh So Pretty

ROAD TEST | The Lexus SC430 is that mightily maligned thing: a chick car.

Perhaps the defining difference between SC430 and its competitors is the car's chic refinement, the ease with which it wears its beauty. It is a car of almost supernatural elegance, from its highly figured wood cabinetry to its nail lacquer finish. Lexus says that the car's designers found their inspiration in the Cote d'Azur, in the shapes and textures of Riva powerboats and Cannes catwalks.

Perhaps as a reflection of the disparity of earning power between women and men, luxury cars tend to be aimed at a male audience.

The Lexus SC430 is one hot little number.

The SC430 may be the only luxury car on the market that tilts in favor of the mature woman's tastes, insofar as we dare define them.

Assigning gender specifics to objects in the engineered world may seem like folly and yet for reasons not well understood, everybody gets

it. It's well documented that men and women respond differently to color and fine art. Why not car design? DAN NEIL (L.A. TIMES)

My opinion would be the Toyota Camry and the Honda Accord, tied, then the Altima and finally the Galant.

Armstrong Takes the Lead

Texan closes in on his 6th Tour de France title

CYCLING | If Lance Armstrong was going to show any weakness, if he was going to let Ivan Basso or Jan Ullrich gain some confidence, it would happen Tuesday, it appeared.

As the three cycling stars headed to the finish line ahead of the pack, each had a shot at winning this year's first Tour de France stage in the Alps.

In the end, Armstrong produced something extra, flashing past Basso on a late turn and winning the stage to reclaim the yellow jersey, a familiar position for the Texan who has won the last five Tours.

Finding fresher legs at the end of a seven-climb, 112-mile trek into the mountains, Armstrong outsprinted Italy's Basso, his closest rival, and Germany's Ullrich, the 1997 champion and five-time runner-up.

Basso was credited with the same finishing time (4 hours, 40 minutes, 30 seconds) in the 15th stage, while Ullrich was three seconds back.

Armstrong earned a time bonus for the victory, extending his overall lead over Basso to 1:25.

If the American makes that stand up over the last five days of the three-week cycling marathon, he'll break the record for most Tour titles. JOHN LEICESTER (AP)

PRO HOCKEY Capitals Re-Sign Halpern

The Washington Capitals re-signed center Jeff Halpern to a one-year deal. The Potomac, Md., native was the Capitals' leading scorer last season with 19 goals and 27 assists. Terms of the deal were not announced on Tuesday. (AP)

PRO BASKETBALL Van Exel Sent to Portland

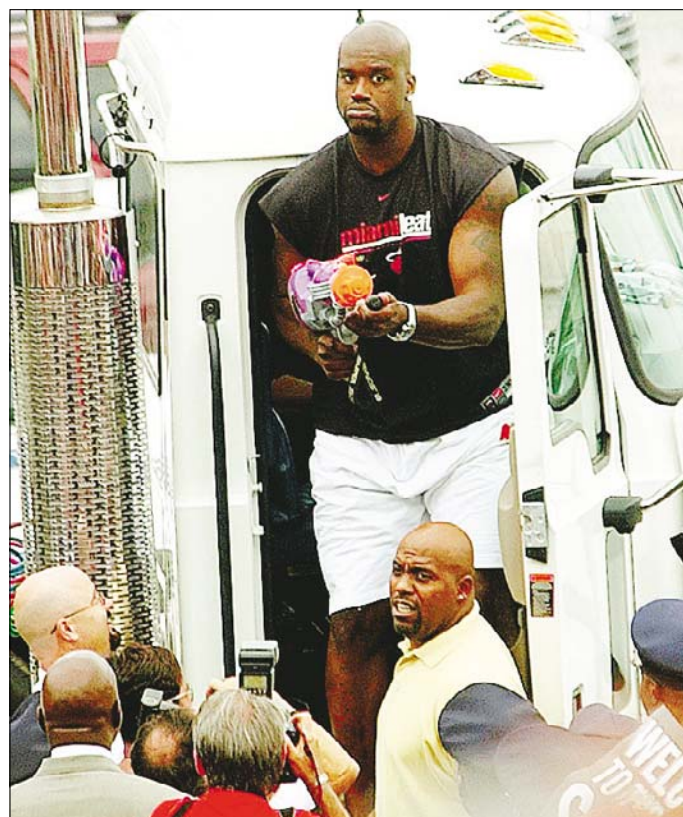

The Golden State Warriors traded point guard Nick Van Exel to the Portland Trail Blazers on Tuesday for forward Dale Davis and guard Dan Dickau. Van Exel was injured for much of his only season with the Warriors, who acquired him from Dallas last summer in a trade involving Antawn Jamison. He averaged 12.6 points while playing just 39 games. COLLEGE BASKETBALL Sutton Recovering After Bumping Into Escalator

Oklahoma State basketball coach Eddie Sutton injured his nose when he was bumped and fell on an escalator at Los Angeles International Airport. The 68-year-old coach needed stitches as a result of Thursday's accident, school spokesman Mike Noteware said Tuesday. The stitches were removed Tuesday. Sutton is recovering at home, according to his son and head coach designate Sean Sutton. (AP)

Garcia Blasts 2 Homers In Return to the Orioles

Roberts, Hairston are injured in 12-3 victory against Kansas City

BASEBALL | Karim Garcia opened his second stint with Baltimore with two home runs and five RBIs, and the Orioles tied a club record with 11 extra-base hits in a 12-3 win over the Kansas City Royals on Tuesday.

Garcia, acquired Monday from the New York Mets for reliever Mike DeJean, was 0-for-16 in eight games for the Orioles in 2000.

The Orioles hit five home runs, a season high, and six doubles. Miguel Tejada, Larry Bigbie and Robert Machado also homered, and Bigbie and Machado also had one double each.

Daniel Cabrera (8-3) pitched five innings for the win, giving up three runs and eight hits. He improved to 3-0 against the Royals this season.

The news was not all good for the Orioles, though. Second baseman Brian Roberts and the player who would replace Roberts at second, Jerry Hairston, both left the game with injuries.

Baltimore was waiting for X-ray results on Roberts' right hand after he was hit on his throwing hand by a bad-hop grounder in the fourth. Hairston, who bruised his upper right side when he ran into the wall, is day-to-day. STEVE BRISENDINE (AP)

The Agony of Hitting a Grand Slam

BASEBALL | Tagg Bozied could hardly wait to get home. Rounding the bases, he saw his Triple-A Portland teammates gathering, waiting to celebrate his game-winning grand slam in the bottom of the ninth.

"It was probably the coolest moment I've had on a baseball field," the San Diego Padres' prospect said.

Then suddenly, agony.

Because as Bozied jumped for joy at the plate, just like the big leaguers do, he felt his left knee give way Monday night.

He blacked out before landing and when he came to, there was no doubt: He was done for the year.

Bozied ruptured a tendon upon takeoff after the 8-5 Pacific Coast League win over Tacoma.

He was to fly to San Diego later Tuesday and have an MRI on Wednesday.

Surgery is likely this week and he'll be sidelined for six months.

Doctors told him he's expected to be OK for spring training next March. (AP)

Pujols Pounds 3 Homers

Cardinals come from behind to defeat Cubs in tension-filled game

BASEBALL | Albert Pujols left a lasting impression on the Chicago Cubs.

Pujols hit his third homer of the game in the ninth inning, a tiebreaking shot that sent the St. Louis Cardinals to an 11-8 comeback victory over Chicago on a testy Tuesday.

Pujols went 5-for-5 with a double and five RBIs, helping St. Louis rally from a six-run deficit in the final meeting of the season between the heated rivals. The Cardinals left Wrigley Field with a 10-game lead over the third-place Cubs in the NL Central.

Yankees Beat Rays, Lose Jeter

BASEBALL | Gary Sheffield hit his 397th homer and drove in three runs Tuesday, leading Jose Contreras and the New York Yankees to a 4-2 victory over the Tampa Bay Devil Rays.

Derek Jeter left the game in the eighth after getting hit on his right hand by a pitch from Victor Zambrano two innings earlier. Jeter has a bruised wrist and an MRI exam will be taken Wednesday.

Contreras (8-3) allowed two runs and four hits in seven innings to beat Zambrano (9-6) for the second time in 12 days — again denying the right-hander's bid to become the NICE GUYS FINISH FIRST: The huge-selling nü-metal hybrid Linkin Park rocks the community and gives back to it through fan-friendly lyrics and now a scholarship fund.

A Walk in the Park

L.A.'s Linkin Park wants to rock for life

PERSONALITY | How does the biggest-selling rock band in the land get pumped up for a roof-raising, tour-ending concert before nearly 20,000 hometown fans?

If you're Linkin Park guitarist Brad Delson, it's by smiling for photos backstage at the Forum with some people from the University of California, Los Angeles Foundation who are there to accept a gift from him: the endowment of a permanent four-year scholarship.

All six members of Linkin Park have donated the band's fees from one show on the " Meteora " world tour — probably in the neighborhood of $200,000 each — to a charity.

Linkin Park's genuineness has helped it emerge alone from the late-'90s rap-rock/nü-metal scene with credibility, critical respect, big sales — and a future.

Its debut album, "Hybrid Theory," came out of nowhere to become the biggest-selling U.S. album of 2001, and "Meteora," which followed in 2003, is likely to equal it.

Monumental soul-searchers such as "In the End," "Somewhere I Belong" and the current hit "Breaking the Habit" have become radio staples, their yearning moods and confessional lyrics serving as lifelines for kids in search of comfort and direction.

If it can sustain the pace, Linkin Park could take its place as a mainstream counterpart to the likes of Jane's Addiction and the Red.

Linkin Park began with beatmaker Mike Shinoda and rock-rooted guitarist Delson, longtime friends from Agoura, teaming with drummer Rob Bourdon and other musicians. After recruiting singer Chester Bennington, they started building a fan base, using the Internet to establish street teams. Warner Bros. finally signed the band, though at first the label hoped to get something more party-minded, another Kid Rock or Limp Bizkit.

"Those things were filled," said Shinoda, 27. "We were bent on creating our own style and developing our thing, and it did take a long time before people were interested in it."

RICHARD CROMELIN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

What More Can He Give?

G-Unit's Lloyd Banks has more, more, more — of the same beats

MUSIC | The title of Lloyd Banks' "The Hunger for More" (G Unit/Interscope) says it all: more gorgeously produced beats, more well-groomed lyrical flow and more of the same money-in-the-bank gangsta crud about rides, gats, ice and hos slicked up in a new wrapper guaranteed to sell.

One-third of the infamous G-Unit, Banks has a delivery more low-toned and deceptively mellow than his partners 50 Cent and Tony Yayo, but the subject is the same: getting and keeping. The first single, "On Fire," is about blowing up — which it has, taking the album straight to No. 1 in its first week.

Though not one of the songs on the album stands out in terms of head-popping new production — there's not a hit that will transcend the hip-hop hard-core — each cut is utterly bulletproof, and Banks' lyrics provide a few new twists.

On "Warrior," for instance, he croons, "If that's your man, warn

'em/ I got enough bullets to hit every NBA patch on 'em."

"Die One Day" contains a sweet guitar sample and high-funk vocal that recalls the best of Funkadelic, and there are shining moments with Eminem on "Warrior Part 2" and with Snoop Dogg on "I Get High."

This is maintenance music for Gs looking for the newest that isn't going to upset their delicate and dangerous palates. DEAN KUIPERS (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

FAR FROM HIS UNIT: Banks' mellow delivery can't save a mediocre album.

Colin Farrell's Part Gets Cut

NICE PACKAGE | "A Home at the End of the World" boasts a terrific pedigree — and a bit of fodder for gossip and speculation.

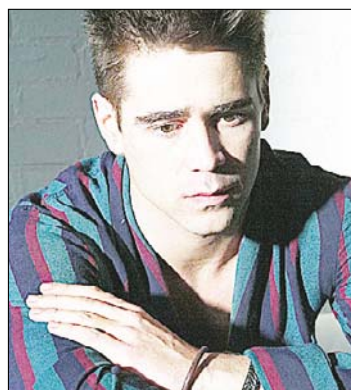

The drama, which opens Friday, revolves around two childhood friends, Bobby and Jonathan, who reunite as adults in New York, where they create with a free-spirited woman a kind of romantically triangular family unit.

The cast includes Sissy Spacek, Robin Wright Penn, Dallas Roberts as Jonathan and Irish bad boy Colin Farrell as Bobby.

The R-rated film, however, directed by Michael Mayer, received a bit of unexpected attention recently. During test screenings, audiences allegedly became distracted at the sight of full frontal Farrell. Although he had a nude scene in Joel Schumacher's "Tigerland," this film marked the first time the 28-year-old actor appeared in the full Monty.

Because the test audience was paying more attention to Farrell au naturel instead of what was going on in the scene, the sequence was, um, clipped. Initial press reports indicated Farrell was angry that his nude scene was left on the cutting room floor and demanded it be included on the DVD.

But Farrell, interviewed in the July 23 issue of Entertainment Weekly, said the scene wasn't anything to "write home about."

Considering that DVDs of controversial films generally offer deleted scenes, there is a good chance the shot with Farrell in the altogether will be included.

ARRESTS
Intruder Arrested
At 'Beckingham Palace'

An intruder with a can of gasoline was arrested after scaling a wall around the grounds of David and VICTORIA BECKHAM's home near London, the Sun reported Tuesday. Victoria was at home with their two sons at the time, while David was in Spain preparing for pre-season training. The alleged intruder, a 38-year-old male, was also suspected of drug possession. The Sun reported that the man appeared angry with David Beckham and intended to burn down the house. (AP)

GUEST APPEARANCES
Mr. Big in the Holy City

"Sex and the City" fans lined up to see CHRIS NOTH on Tuesday, shown here surrounded by photographers at the Western Wall in Jerusalem. "I feel great solidarity, as a New Yorker, being here in Israel," he told reporters earlier. He's currently on a 10-day tour of holy sites sponsored by the Israeli Tourism Ministry. Business mixed with pleasure Monday when Mr. Big filmed a commercial for Israeli deodorant. (EXPRESS)

DESTINATIONS
Britney's Room for Rent,
Madonna Not Included

Guests at Boston's Onyx Hotel can now pretend to sleep in BRITNEY SPEARS' room. Her mother, Lynne, designed a room to look just like Britney's bedroom at home in Kentwood, La. The mini-bar is stocked with some of Brit's favorites — Cheetos, strawberry Pop Tarts, Starburst and Red Bull. Her CDs and a DVD of "Crossroads" are also on hand. The hotel will donate 10 percent of the room's $349 nightly charge to the Britney Spears Foundation, which helps children and funds a performing arts camp in Louisiana. (AP)

SPECIAL DELIVERY
Report: Jackson Expecting
4 New Babies to Dangle

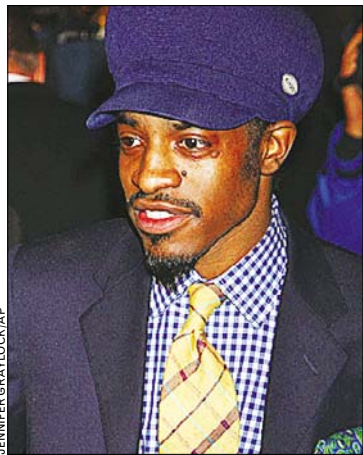

Michael Jackson is expecting quadruplets with an anonymous surrogate mother, Us Weekly reported on Tuesday. Sources close to the singer told the magazine that he recently visited the pregnant mother at a luxury hotel in Miami. In a British TV interview last year, Jackson revealed that his third child, Prince Michael II, had been carried by a stranger. "I used a surrogate mother and my own sperm cells," he said. "She doesn't know me." His spokesperson declined to comment on the story. (EXPRESS)

HOT HERBIVORES
Andre, Alicia More Sexy
Than Weird Al Yankovic

ANDRE 3000 and ALICIA SILVERSTONE were voted the "World's Sexiest Vegetarians" this week in PETA's annual online poll. Silverstone and Andre 3000 beat out John Cleese, Prince and Weird Al Yankovic. More than 12,000 votes were cast in this year's contest. Previous winners include Tobey Maguire, Lauren Bush and Shania Twain. (AP)

Andre: Sexier than John Cleese, too.

RACES
The Summer of Lance

"Oh God! It's Bikestock!" ROBIN WILLIAMS said Tuesday, referring to the 16th stage of the Tour de France, where 1 million frenzied supporters are expected to greet riders as they speed by today. The 9.6-mile route stretches up France's mythical L'Alpe d'Huez mountain. An amateur cycling enthusiast, Williams joins Sheryl Crow and Prince Albert as the latest celebrity guest invited by Lance Armstrong to view the race. Asked if he'd like to ride the grueling stage himself, Williams joked, "I'd love to ... if I could find a bike." (AP)

Letters

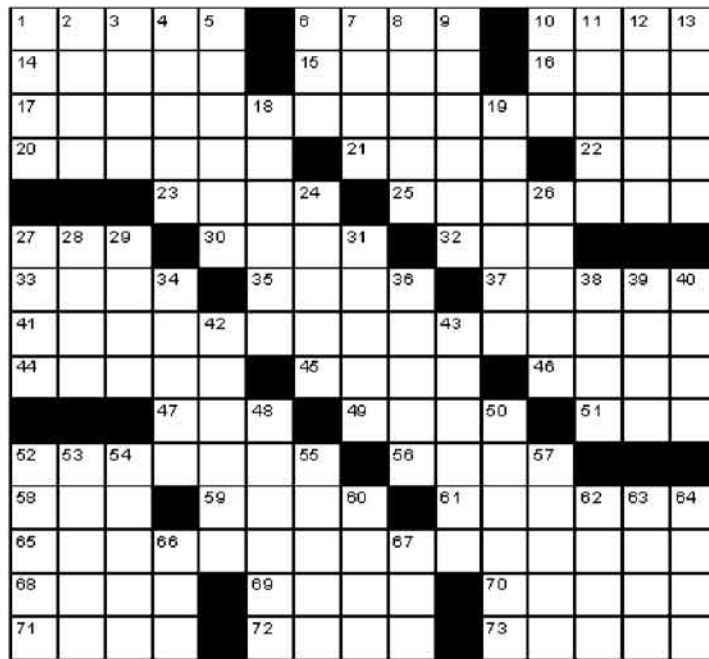

ALTHOUGH IT'S a small story in many ways, I'm appalled to hear that Linda Ronstadt was thrown out of a Vegas club for dedicating a song to Michael Moore (People, July 20). Regardless of your views about Moore's op-ed film "Fahrenheit 9/11" (and unless you've seen it you shouldn't judge it one way or the other), every American should support freedom of speech. It is simply un-American not to defend anyone's right to say what they believe, regardless of whether or not you agree with them. That is what true democracy is all about.

THAT SURE WAS a judgmental article about the woman who walks her dachshund around in a stroller in Tuesday's EyeOpeners. Give the woman a break — she's trying to get a little exercise for herself, and there's no need to rip into the poor (obviously quite defenseless) little pup. Perhaps a few Express editors have had some disagreeable experiences with dachshunds, hence the vitriol. I felt sorry for the poor guy.

WRITE TO EXPRESS: Letters must include the writer's name, address and telephone number. Submissions may be edited for space. E-mail to inbox@readexpress.com or mail to Express Letters, PO Box 17370, Arlington, VA 22216.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Don't be so unstructured and imaginative that those working with you do not know what you are striving to accomplish.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You're sure to be intrigued by the approach that a close friend takes in trying to get your attention. Be receptive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Don't overemphasize your own stake in a current project. You don't want others to think that you're only in it for yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — This is a good time to turn over a new leaf. Even a broken promise can be successfully revived and honored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — What you're only imagining may actually come to pass, provided you make a few key decisions while in the right state of mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You are in need of both mental and physical stimulus. Without both working in tandem, you are sure to become disenchanted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You can use the element of surprise to your distinct advantage, but be sympathetic to those around you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You may find yourself ruled by basic instincts, because you don't have anything really pivotal on the line right now.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You will not give up until you've gotten precisely what you're after, no matter how much you may have to sacrifice in the process.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — A challenge that arises will be more social than professional. Concentrate on playing the game at arranged functions.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You may be struggling with a co-worker over trivial issues and letting the big picture get away from you — possibly for good. Use care.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You may not know how to express what is on your mind, but be willing to try. Others are expecting you to come through.

High Court

Author and journalist DAVID GREENBERG was online Tuesday to discuss his Post Outlook article about the importance of the appointment of the next Supreme Court justice.

What is the procedure for recalling Supreme Court justices? If they are to be political agents, then what recourse do citizens have?

Supreme Court justices are appointed for life. The idea is that this will buffer them from political pressures. But I agree that they are political agents in their own way.

The procedure for recalling them is impeachment. During the Nixon administration, Gerald Ford (then a congressman) led an effort on Nixon's behalf to impeach William O. Douglas, but it didn't get much traction.

It's funny that we've heard nothing about the role the next president will play in selecting justices, and how that could lead to changes, including a reversal of Roe v. Wade. Why is there so little discussion?

It's certainly one of the major issues at stake in this year's election. In the next four years we're less likely to see another terrorist attack or recession than the retirement of a justice, but everyone is focused on foreign policy and the economy.

One reason, I think, is that the Supreme Court issue plays well with the party's base constituencies, but not so well with swing voters, who are now getting the candidates' attention. I haven't seen the polling numbers on this; it's just speculation on my part.

Which justice or justices are most likely to retire in the next four years?

John Paul Stevens is 84. He seems almost certain to retire in the next four years. O'Connor, Rehnquist and Ginsburg are also said to be possibilities.
